

LEGAL AND ETHICAL ASPECTS OF SUICIDE RISK ASSESSMENT AND MANAGEMENT

Is this Workshop for You?

Are you a professional practitioner who encounters clients experiencing suicide ideation? If so, understanding your legal and ethical duty of care obligations is a necessity - not only for the sake of your client's life, but also potentially for your career.

As a professional, you must be able to reasonably assess a client's risk for suicide, navigate your responsibilities and take whatever steps are ethically appropriate to prevent their harm.

You are accountable for your decisions, whereby this training supports you in recognising, formulating and collaborating for better client outcomes.

The benefits of investing in this training can obviously be life-altering.

Workshop Details

Dates & Venue - See Website for details

Times - 1 days (8:30-4:30, with breaks)

Catering - Deliciously provided. Enjoy!

CPD PTS - 7 hours

Training Materials - All included. Just turn up!

Variations and Extra Resources - On request.

Content Inclusions

This training includes evaluation of assessment practice, documentation, referral and management practices, and recognition of occupation based risks*.

Specific focus areas include:

- > Language use and impacts on the practitioner
- > Informed consent and capacity to consent
- > Limits to confidentiality
- > Legal obligations in detecting and responding to suicidal clients
- > Practitioner ethical responsibilities, as well as decision making under pressure (case studies)
- > Legally and ethically compliant documentation
- > Reviews of practitioner's actions using the findings of coroners inquests
- > Protocol considerations
- > Safety Planning
- > Ethical and legal responsibilities

PS: Follow-up or stand-alone consultation services are available. Complement your training with a professional review of your systems, procedures and environment.

*Additional resources and variations available on request.

Phone: 0406 935 225 | PO Box 178, Engadine NSW 2233
Email: carmen@suicideriskassessment.com.au | www.suicideriskassessment.com.au

We're saving lives ... through you!